The Columbian.

The demand upon our columns for advertising space certainly shows that business men recognize the value of "The Columbian" as an advertising medium.

VOL 29 BLOOMSBURG, PA., FRIDAY, JUNE 29, 1894. NO 26

COMMENCEMENT WEEK.

Exercises at the Normal.

LARGE CROWDS IN ATTENDANCE.

Baccalaureate Sermon—Junior Exhibition, Class-Day and Commencement.

THE ALUMNI DINNER.

The twenty-fifth Commencement exercises of the Bloomsburg State Normal School were held this week. All the entertainments were largely attended. The school graduates one of the largest classes ever sent out from a Normal School in the State, and the prospects for next year are very bright for an attendance that will fill the institution. Under Dr. Welsh's splendid management, with the assistance of the Faculty, the school has continued to grow, and its reputation has widened until it is well-known all over the State, and in other States.

The exercises of the week were as follows:

BACCALAUREATE SERMON.

First and quite appropriate in the order of the exercises was an excellent baccalaureate sermon by the Rev. W. J. Stearns, who is pastor of the Presbyterian church of Danville. His choice of a text was by no means unique, it being based upon the popular words found in Matthew XVI, 26, "For what is a man profited if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul; or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?"

To the young students who are qualifying themselves for the duties, realities, and, we might say, vain ambitions of life, the topic was well suited to the occasion and it was a most happy selection upon which to expatiate.

JUNIOR EXHIBITION.

Though the humid atmosphere and threatening storm was anything but favorable, yet the promise of seeing Mother Goose dramatized or set to music attracted a large, and we may add, fashionable audience to the Normal School Auditorium on Monday evening. Judging from the crowd present and also those who failed to sqeeze in, nonsense counts for as much as horse sense in this town. We shall not say that this is peculiar to Bloomsburg alone. It seems the original plan was to have nonsense exemplified, and the originators of the entertainment sifted out the very quintescense of nonsence, and then they left the doors more wide open to get out that they were to get in. If any great number left in disgust we failed to see them. As it would be invidious and perhaps uncomplimentary to say who did best, we will not do so. While the various parts on some programs are rendered in the dark, or beyond the comprehension of the audience, it was very different in this case, as everybody seemed to understand what was coming next according to their nonsensical recollections.

We saw the veritable cat that got into the well, and Simple Simon and the Pieman, along with Peter Piper, Little Tom Tucker, Jack and Jill, Little Bo-Peep, Robie Shaftoe and the Little Boy Blue. There were other characters there of course, but these seemed to leave an indelible impression on the mind of the austere and fashionable audience.

We regret to say (while hating to find fault with things of depth and earnestness) that we anticipated several characters that failed to appear, to-wit, Old Mother Hubbard and that other illustrious old woman whose pig wouldn't go over the bridge.

Now, we will only add that with a little more training along this line of study, the class of '95 may all expect to graduate. In fact, we think they are now fit to graduate, inasmuch as the voice of the prompter was not heard from the opening to the close of the exercises. No one witnessing that performance will presume to say the class of '95 is without hope for the future.

On Tuesday evening Mr. C. E. Wilde, of New York City, addressed the Literary Societies of the Normal School. His talk was characteristic of the practical business man, and it was well received by all present.

ALUMNI DINNER.

At two o'clock the larger dining hall was filled with the Alumni, the Faculty, Trustees, and friends of the school, and a delicious repast was served under the direction of Steward Housel. At its close the assemblage was called to order by Geo. E. Elwell, Esq., acting as Toast-Master. The toasts prepared by the committee of arrangements were "The Institution as reviewed by a Trustee," responded to by J. M. Clark Esq.; "The class of '94," responded to by Miss Adelaide Ellsworth; "Setting a Pattern," responded to by Dr. J. P. Welsh. The speeches were interspersed with music by the school orchestra led by Miss Haas. It was a delightful occasion, and an unusually large number of old students, were present.

Brilliant Success of Our Normal School.

As a result of the recent examinations given the students of the Normal School there were 112 Seniors, and 161 Juniors who were favorably recommended to the State Examining Committee by the Faculty. The Junior Class thus recommended is said to be the largest ever presented in this State. Of this large class but two were dropped by the State Committee.

Of the 57 sub-juniors 38 passed the State Board successfully. The grand total of successful students for this year being 309, which is believed to be the largest number of successful students ever sent out by any school in a single year.

The following is a complete list of all students passed by the examining board:

Of all the automatic figures and natural attractions that the clothiers Gidding & Co. have yet placed on exhibition, the wink of the eye of the cigarette-smoking monkey now in the window leaves the Egyptian Mummy and the African Stork, &c., some distance behind. This figure should not only point a moral for cigarette smoking but it should also adorn a tail—which the monkey in question seems to have shed.

Special Sale on mens wool suits Saturday at Gidding & Co's.

BRIEF MENTION

About People You Know.

Mrs. Isaiah Hagenbuch is on an extended visit in the West.

County Commissioner Ikeler visited Millville on last Tuesday.

Charles Langfield has secured an appointment in the railway mail service.

Miss Hattie Peacock is entertaining Miss Clara Nesbitt, of Plymouth.

Mrs Carrie Sypher, of Jersey Shore, is visiting her brother J. M. Staver this week.

S. C. Creasy and family went to Ocean Grove, where they will spend several weeks.

Mrs. Wolf Dreifus, of Milton, is spending a few days with her mother, Mrs. Lowenberg.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Fornwald visited Editor Beidleman, of Shickshinny, on Monday last.

Mrs. Albert Lynn and two little daughters, of Berwick, were in town on Saturday visiting friends.

The Misses Krum, who live on East street, are being visited by Miss Ida Mains of Plymouth.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Trump are bereaved over the loss of a little daughter eight weeks old. It was buried last Monday.

Grant Herring, Collector of Internal Revenue, attended the State Convention at Harrisburg on Wednesday, the 27th instant.

Mr. Chauncy French, who had been to Florida looking after his business interests, returned to Bloomsburg on Tuesday evening.

Mrs Richardson, of Normal Hill, has taken up her residence in California. Accompanied by her daughter Hattie, they left Bloomsburg for California on Tuesday morning.

Howard Bowman Eckroth who was recently elected president of the Junior class at our State Normal School, is a son of one of our subscribers, Mr. William Eckroth, of Mifflinville, Pa.

Mrs. John P. Hannon, of Conyngham township came up on Tuesday to take out letters of administration on her husbands estate. She remained a couple of days making a visit with the family of W. H. Snyder, esq.

John W. Mears has been awarded a diploma of honorable mention by the Board of Lady Managers of the World's Fair Commission for his skill in arranging the exhibit of the Mears Manufacturing Co. at the World's Fair.

A mong those who attended the State Convention at Harrisburg on Wednesday were the delegates, J. R. Townsend, C. H. Dorr, B. J. Doyle, J. G. McHenry and Charles Pfahler. Also Grant Herring, Esq., W. H. Rhawn, Esq., Wm. Chrisman, Esq., and J. H. Mercer.

Charles Hendershott, whom we remember as a reliable and trustworthy telegraph operator in the days of our youth, is now among those who are making a manly effort to discard the drink habit, or disease, at the Bloomsburg Bedal Gold Cure. He assures us that he has received the most substantial help and encouragement from Bloomsburg saloon-keepers.

John Moran, of Centralia, spent last Tuesday in town and while here secured testimonials for his daughter Lizzie, who is an applicant for a position in the United States Mint at Philadelphia. She is a graduate of the Normal School and an accomplished young lady and well qualified for the position she desires. The testimonials were given by Hon. C. R. Buckalew, Judge Elwell, Judge Ikeler, Collector Herring, Prof. Welsh, Postmaster Mercer and many other citizens.

We need in this town, and perhaps we have one if he were known, an "All-round man." A man handy with tools, who can put up a shelf, replace a broken hinge, procure and put in window glass, supply a leg to a chair, a rocker to a cradle, patch up broken plaster, and matters of that sort.

A competent man who could do such things about the house or when possible, at a shop or room of his own, without noise, confusion or dirt, would be invaluable. He should be a fairly neat workman and a cleanly man.

If there is such a man he is not visible to the average eye—he cannot be found when needed—and therefore the shutter breaks clear off, the glass falls out for want of putty, the chair goes to wrack, the child's slumber is broken, and the broken plaster is still more dilapidated. And what is worse than all, the temper of the whole household is put upon strain and trial and everything seems out of joint.

You remember Franklin's story: For want of a nail the shoe was lost, for want of a shoe the horse was lost, for want of the horse, &c &c., until mishap after mishap overwhelmed the establishment.

Now if a competent man, fitting himself up with the necessary tools, announced himself in the town papers, as prepared, ready and able to perform and do such odd jobs and work, and then, having a place where he could be found, would follow that up by a personal call upon the citizens, it seems possible that he and they would be very greatly helped and obliged.

TO MY SWEETHEART.

(The first love song ever written by Mr. Field.)

Sweetheart, be my sweetheart
When the birds are on the wing,
When bee and bud and babbling flood
Bespeak the birth of spring;
Come, sweetheart, be my sweetheart,
And wear this posy-ring!

Sweetheart, be my sweetheart
In the mellow golden glow
Of earth aflush with the gracious blush
Which the ripening fields foreshow:
Dear sweetheart, be my sweetheart,
As into the moon we go!

Sweetheart, be my sweetheart
When falls the bounteous year,
When fruit and wine of tree and vine
Give us their harvest cheer;
Oh, sweetheart, be my sweetheart,
For winter it draweth near.

Sweetheart, be my sweetheart
When the year is white and old,
When the fire of youth is spent, forsooth,
And the hand of age is cold;
Yet, sweetheart, be my sweetheart
Till the year of our love be wild!
—Eugene Field in the March Ladies' Home Journal.

A LOST ILLUSION.

"Well, I'm blest! What an extraordinary thing! Who the deuce can have sent it, and what the devil do they mean by it?" and Capt. Clitheroe turned over and over a dainty sheet of note paper on which a few words were written in bold, decided characters. "It's altogether the rummiest go I've ever come across. An anonymous letter!" The note ran thus:

"It will be worth your while to watch your wife this afternoon; she is making a call at the Hotel Metropole. You may not find your visit altogether amusing, but you will certainly find it instructive!"

"By Jove!" said the captain, "how absurd! Some woman, I suppose, jealous of Lily's good looks. It's always a woman who does that sort of thing—poor little Lily—perhaps she may make a guess at the writer, she's a long-headed little woman."

And picking up the mysterious communication, Capt. Clitheroe was about to make his way to his wife's room, when that charming young lady fluttered into the breakfast room, in the freshest and most fascinating of morning gowns.

"Have I kept you waiting, Hugh? I'm so sorry!" and she took her place serenely behind her urn.

"Any news?" she asked, glancing at the pile of leters beside her husband's plate.

"None at all; everything is as dull as can be."

Somehow it seemed ridiculous to tell Lily about the note. And then women are such extraordinary creatures, there was no knowing how she might take it.

"That was a charming dance at the Philisters last night," volunteered Lily, after a pause, during which she had opened several of her letters.

"You certainly seemed to enjoy yourself."

"I did. I—oh! here is a card from Lota Jardyne. She wants us to dine there on the twentieth to meet the Maharaja of Kaputhala. How that woman gets people to go to her I don't know. Besides, why does she ask us? We are not in that fast set, thank goodness, and besides, she hates me."

"Hates you! My dear Lily, what nonsense! Why, last night she was singing your praises to me for ever so long."

"Oh, yes, I know—en tete-a-tete in the conservatory.

Capt. Clitheroe laughed.

"You are too hard on her, Lily. She is not so bad, though, of course, I should not care to have you her bosom friend. But, really, she talked of nothing but you, how graceful you were, how charming—in fact, when she passed from your hair to your teeth, I began to feel a little uneasy. I was afraid a full catalogue of your charms was to follow."

Mrs. Clitheroe had flushed to the roots of her golden hair.

"What an abominable woman? What did you do?"

"Well, her partner came and claimed her for the next dance, and so I escaped. But why on earth should you think the woman hates you?"

"Why, you dear old simpleton! Don't you know she will never forgive me for being Mrs. Glitheroe? Don't you know she wanted you to play Lancelot to her Guinevere?"

"Lily!"

"Hugh! But never mind her. By the way, dear, I don't think I ever knew any one to waltz like your friend Graham. It makes one think of all those deliciously wicked little French love poems that one mayn't read till one's married."

"Really, my dear Lily!" laughed Hugh.

"Well, you know, dear, so few men do dance nowadays that one may be permitted to enthuse a little over one who does; and besides, Capt. Graham is altogether delightful in every way."

"Yes, he's one of the best fellows I know; I'm glad you like him."

"It was so strange. I felt sure I had seen him before, and we made out we had met at Mentone, when I was traveling with uncle, years ago."

"Really! Lady Jardyne said she knew you at Mentone."

"Oh, bother Lady Jardyne! You must ask Capt. Graham to dine; I like to know your bachelor friends."

"With pleasure, darling; but he has only just arrived, you know, and I don't know where he has put up. However, he's sure to look in at the club."

"Oh, he told me last night he was staying at the Metropole!"

"The Metropole!" and Capt. Clitheroe set down his coffee cup with a jerk.

"Yes; what's the matter?"

"Nothing," he answered, smiling; but, glancing at his wife after a moment, he fancied she looked a little disturbed and she broke the seal of another letter.

It was a most extraordinary coincidence, and certainly Graham had been particularly attentive to Lily last night, and—but it was altogether too impossible, yet——

Mrs. Clitheroe broke into his thoughts.

"Do you know, Hugh, that Capt. Graham——"

"My dear Lily, you seem to have Captain Graham on the brain!" exclaimed her husband, rising abruptly.

Mrs. Clitheroe looked at him with a slight. Hugh was given to assuming Othello-like moods at times, and they were rather amusing to his fair Desdemona than otherwise.

Meantime, Hugh was gazing rather blankly at the trees of Grosvenor square, and trying hard to dispel the doubt that had arisen in his mind. People, he reflected, who write anonymous letters are proverbially cowards and slanderers, yet there is seldom any smoke without fire. The Metropole! It was an extraordinary coincidence! What should he do? Should he sift the matter out at once? It might be wiser—yes!

Captain Clitheroe turned and caught a fascinating glimpse of his wife, who stood with upraised arms before the glass, arranging a refractory curl. How very pretty she was! Her dainty, saucy face smiled back at him from the mirror, her parted lips disclosing those exquisite white teeth which were one of her greatest charms. Impossible that she should deceive him—absolutely impossible! Besides, they had married for love, and that little more than a year ago; it could not be. As he stood irresolute, a sudden inspiration flashed upon his mind.

"Lily, what do you say to driving down to Richmond this afternoon, and dining there? Wouldn't it be rather jolly?"

"Delightful. That is, if you think we can get back in time for Lady Valmont's reception, you know."

"Oh, we shall have heaps of time," he exclaimed, gleefully, and he stooped and kissed her. "Be ready to start directly after lunch, like a good little woman."

Capt. Clitheroe's sigh of relief when he was alone was the sort of thing to gladden the heart of an optimist. The letter was all nonsense, of course, or she would have made some excuse, darling little Lily. Now he would burn the letter and forget all about it. No; he would keep it, and to-night, when they were driving home, he would show it, and she should laugh at him as much as she pleased, and together they might unravel the mystery or practical joke, whichever it might be. So the gilt-edged note was replaced in his pocket, as he took his way to his own den.

He stood a moment in the hall to relight his cigarette, and his eyes fell on a scrap of paper at his feet. Mechanically he picked it up; it was a fragment of a torn envelope, and a bit of the letter had been left inside.

Hardly thinking what he did, he glanced at them, and his attention was unpleasantly arrested by an unmistakable "pole" on the remains of the flap of the envelope, and "three sharp" on the minute corner of the enclosed letter, with "F. Gr" on the other side.

He stood stockstill. Without a doubt the incomplete words were "Metropole" and "F. Graham."

We all of us have a few bad quarters of an hour to pass during our progress through this vale of tears, and, perhaps, the interval between his entering his den and his emerging from it at the sound of the luncheon bell was the worst that Hugh Clitheroe was ever destined to traverse.

Lily was already in the dining room when he appeared, but a striking change had come over her. The bright, fresh figure of the morning was gone; the pretty golden head and the dainty face were completely shrouded in a huge lace veil.

"What's the matter?" asked Hugh, hurriedly.

"Oh, Hugh, dear, that neuralgia—that dreadful neuralgia; I shall go mad with the pain, I think."

"Poor little girl," he said, gently; "perhaps the air will do you good."

"The air? Oh, I forgot. Oh, Hugh, I cannot possibly go! I am too ill."

Hugh's heart sank.

"But, dear——"

"The drive would make it ever so much worse," she interrupted, pettishly. "It is absurd to think of it. I shall stay in my room, and be very quiet all the afternoon, and perhaps when you come back to dinner I shall be quite well again."

"Perhaps! There seems to be something very erratic about its coming and going."

Lily gazed at him a moment.

"I will go upstairs now, Hugh. What are you going to do?"

"Oh, I shall go to the club," he answered, carelessly, "and then on to the Fairchilds. I shan't trouble you."

"You never do that, dear," she said, sweetly, as she gave him a little butterfly kiss on her way out.

Hugh Clitheroe felt as if some one had dealt him a blow. That was the last straw! He was grimly determined to carry out to the bitter end the plan he had formed this morning.

With unusual emphasis he gave his parting directions to his man, and closed the hall door after him in a manner calculated to exaggerate his wife's neuralgia. There was little unnecessary noise, however, about the way in which he reentered the house later. Never had he walked so softly in his life as when he stole back to his den, which commanded a view of the staircase and the hall.

It was mean—execrably mean, he knew, of course; but—at that moment he heard the gentle frou-frou of a woman's gown, then a noiseless opening and closing of the hall door, and the next moment he was watching his wife's black-robed figure being whirled away in a hansom. A second more saw him following in another cab. The vehicles drew up, one behind the other before the portico of the Metropole.

Capt. Clitheroe sat well back in his hansom, while Lily passed rapidly into the hall of the hotel. When she had disappeared, he followed. His face was white and set, and his soul was boiling within him.

Graham, his own familiar friend, in whom he had trusted! Of course, it was always so.

Lily! his bright, innocent, girlish wife! His hands clenched as he thought of it.

The difficulty was, of course, to discover the number of the room. There was no knowing under what alias Graham might be passing—it was best not to mention names.

A few minutes' conversation with the porter, conducted in a diplomatic manner, a turn or two of the golden key, and Capt. Clitheroe found himself outside No. 72 only a few minutes after Lily had entered it.

He was obliged to pause a moment to control himself, then abruptly turned the handle of the door.

For a second there was absolute silence as he stood on the threshold taking in the scene before him.

His wife, her hat thrown off, her wraps loosened, was reclining in an easy-chair—bending over was a tall, dark man, but not Frank Graham.

It was this discovery that petrified Captain Clitheroe, but only for a second. The hero of the adventure was different; but alas! the miserable adventure remained the same.

He advanced quickly, and Lily, terrified by his looks, uttered a sharp cry and covered her face with her hands; the stranger alone remained impassable, calmly polite and smiling.

"Who are you? What are you?" thundered the captain, beside himself with rage.

"May I ask you the same question?" came with a slight nasal intonation from the smiling lips of the stranger.

"I am Capt. Clitheroe."

"Madam's husband! I see!"

His calm allousness maddened Hugh.

"How do you explain your conduct?—my wife's presence here?"

"I can explain nothing without madam's permission."

"Oh, Hugh!" sobbed Lily. "I will explain everything to you. I will, indeed; only go away—do go away! Oh! why did you come here?"

Capt. Clitheroe laughed, sardonically, and flung down the letter of the morning. "Because I wanted to see the truth there was in this."

"Lota Jardyne's! I'm sure it is from her. I told you she hated me. Oh, if you would only go away!"

Hugh turned from her impatiently, and once more confronted the stranger, who still wore his slightly amused air.

"You, sir—it is with you I have to do. Do you think I mean to parley with you? Do you think I am going to be made the laughing stock of the town? Do you think—What's that?" he asked, imperatively, as his eye lighted on a dainty morocco case on the table.

The stranger made a movement to take it, but Clitheroe was too quick for him.

"No, I will see it! You have dared to make her presents!" and in his rage he fumbled helplessly with the spring.

"I would not open it if I were you, captain," put in the dark man, suavely.

"You be ——!" cried Clitheroe, as the spring yielded to his pressure.

"Great Scott!"

Lily shrieked, the stranger still smiled as the captain stood gazing, horror-struck, at an adorable set of—pearly teeth!

"I—you—then——"

The dark man came to the rescue with his maddeningly smooth voice.

"You did not know? I am Mr. Grinder, of the firm of Molar & Grinder. Some years ago I was staying at Mentone, and there I made the acquaintance of madam and her uncle. Madam, who was at that time, of course, a very young lady, had the misfortune, while riding, to meet with a very bad accident, in which her—eh—dental organization was fatally injured. I had the pleasure of coming to the rescue in my professional capacity, and since then have always been honored with madam's confidence.

"I was forced to pass through London, and agreed with madam, that the opportunity would be a good one to ensure her against any mishap by providing her with another—eh—another set of pearls. Madam is a little disturbed, and if you will allow me, I will withdraw. I have some telegrams to attend to. Pray consult your own convenience in every way;" and, still smiling, suave and irreproachable, the junior partner of Molar & Grinder withdrew.

Fine Detective Work.

"One of the best pieces of detective work I ever saw," said James C. Sutter, of San Francisco, "was done by a private detective of little or no reputation at the time in our city. A swell restaurant was completely demoralized by a series of petty thefts. Its plated ware, which had to be of a high quality, was stolen freely, and it frequently happened that the pockets of overcoats on the racks were pilfered. The proprietor, recognizing that his living was at stake, offered an excessively large reward for the detection of the thief, and the detective I refer to undertook the job. He planned out a series of mirrors, reversing the dodge of the dime museum man who makes a portrait of a figure invisible, and so planning the glasses that he could overlook the entire room while seated at a little table in the far corner. His planning involved some little expense and seemed so far-fetched that he had some difficulty in persuading the proprietor to adopt the idea. He had his own way at last, and then, when everything was ready, he arranged to have a little more silverware than usual scattered around and made his observations. He caught three men on the first day, but rightly supposing the work was being done by a gang, who were doubtless operating other houses, he had the three shadowed and continued his observations the following day. He finally captured seven, and traced their operations to nearly every hotel and restaurant in the city. He has never made public the exact secret of his angles in the looking-glasses, but has popularized himself so much among the hotel fraternity that he has never lacked for work, and has got in the way of refusing jobs in other lines.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

The Date of Creation.

In the seventeenth century Dr. John Lightfoot, vice-chancellor of the University of Cambridge, the great rabbinical scholar of his time, attempted to reconcile the two accounts in Genesis by saying that of the "clean sort of beasts there were seven of every kind created, three couples for breeding and the odd one for Adam's sacrifice on his fall, which God foresaw;" that of unclean beasts only one couple was created; and finally, that "heaven and earth, centre and circumference, were created together, in the same instant, and clouds full of water," and that "this took place and man was created by the Trinity on October 23, 4004 B. C., at nine o'clock in the morning." Here was, indeed, a triumph of Lactantius's method, the result of a thousand years of biblical study and theological thought since Bede, in the eighth century, and Vincent de Beauvais, in the thirteenth, had declared that creation must have taken place in the spring. Yet, alas! within two centuries after Lightfoot's great theological demonstration as to the exact hour of creation, it was discovered that at that hour an exceedingly cultivated people, enjoying all the fruits of a highly developed civilization, had long been swarming in the great cities of Egypt, and that other nations hardly less advanced had at that time reached a high development in Asia.—Andrew D. White, L. H. D., in the Popular Science Monthly.

Solemn Facts About Fish and Fishing.

Anglers who have been fishing from the Wrightsville dam this week report seeing many carp in the river. The carp come up as far as the dam, and, finding their further progress impeded by that structure, attempt to jump over it. Many large carp are daily seen attempting to jump over the dam. Amos Hoffman, one of York's most persistent anglers, was compelled to retreat from his position on the dam to avoid being struck by a big carp that attempted to surmount the dam immediately in front of him. The fish, he declares, was nearly three feet in length.

Susquehanna salmon, or wall-eyed pike, are reported plentiful and are biting freely.

A party of half a dozen anglers from Stewartstown recently spent a day fishing in the river at McCall's Ferry. Their catch aggregated 200 fish of good size, mostly bass and salmon.

Ellsworth Mohn and Henry Schonour were off on a fishing trip to Bowmansville, and caught a few fine messes. The former caught a fish of a rare specimen. It had a head similar to that of a baboon, and had 43 horns about one-sixteenth of an inch in length. The eyes were like a chicken's and yellow in color. The body was black and white spotted, and was about nine inches long.

Joseph Breneman, of Linestown, recently went fishing at McCall's Ferry, Pa., and fell in a hole 100 feet deep and was drowned. He had gone with his son to a rock in the river from which he fished. While standing near the edge he lost his footing, slid into the water and sank out of sight. His hat afterward reached the surface, but all efforts to recover his body were futile. The son was too small to assist his father in any way.

Please credit to J. J. McHenry, of Benton, a trout measuring 17½ inches and weighing 2 pounds and 7 ½ ozs.

BALTIMORE TRAMP REMEDY.

Here food, shelter and work are provided on the co-operative plan by residents of the city acting jointly with the police. Wood yards and stone-yards are provided where the worthy who are willing to earn their food and shelter may find ample opportunity without wounding the pride at begging. The annoyed householder turns the nomadic beggar over to the police and the police introduces him to the wood yard, thus giving him a chance to become interested personally in its co-operation and relieving him from the stigma of begging and the danger of exposure to inclement weather. The really deserving have only to apply for work to get it, while the undeserving have more business thrust upon them in Baltimore than they care to attend to. The co-operative plan carries with it certain responsibilities that the tramp proper don't care to shoulder very long. The cares of business seem to fatigue him and he dissolves partnership and leaves.

Help is Wanted

by the women who are ailing and suffering, or weak and exhausted. And, to every such woman, help is guaranteed by Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. For young girls just entering womanhood; women at the critical "change of life"; women approaching confinement; nursing mothers; and every woman who is "run-down" or overworked, it is a medicine that builds up, strengthens, and regulates, no matter what the condition of the system.

It's an invigorating, restorative tonic, a soothing and bracing nervine, and the only guaranteed remedy for "female complaints" and weaknesses. In bearing-down sensations, periodical pains, ulceration, inflammation, and every kindred ailment, if it ever fails to benefit or cure you, you have your money back.

It must be remembered that all our strikes and present distressed commercial conditions have been generated under the benign influence of Republican law. We have no other responsible law as yet. All Democratic efforts to pass other laws affecting our commerce, our tariff and our personal taxation, has thus far failed to pass. Come, now, let's give the glory of our distressed conditions to whom the glory belongs. For Democracy has really done nothing but threaten as yet.

Among the latest inventions we notice quite a valuable idea just patented. It is a Brooklyn church collection box, or money-sifter. It is to be used in taking up promiscuous church collections, claiming to leave the collector nothing to do but count the cash dropped into his little box. Incidentally the patent may possibly stimulate the generosity of the donor, since a button can't be made to serve as a nickle, nor can a nickle presume to associate with quarters. It seems to be a kind of a slot machine put to good use.

More Gasoline Stove Explosions.

While we dislike to condem any article of common use because of its commercial value to the manufacturer and seller yet we believe it to be the legitimate province of the newspaper to give the news and protect society wherever the article in question may endanger life and property. According to newspaper reports coming under our observation gasoline stove explosions are now as frequent as were coal oil lamp explosions previous to the discovery of their proper ventilation by the tube now leading up to the flame. The following extracts are only a few explosions of a number we have culled at random:

"The explosion of a gasoline stove at Strawberry Mansion, in Philadelphia, recently resulted in the severe burning of Harry Knox and W. J. Baird. Both men were taken to the German Hospital, and Baird will probably die.

"Flames also roared through every room of the wretched tenement house 211 North Second street, imperiling the lives of a half dozen families of the very poorest class. Rebecca King, a 2-year-old child, was burned to death, and Augusta King, an infant, was badly injured by the flames. Mrs. Fannie King, an industrious seamtress, the mother of two children, became a raving maniac when she learned the awful disaster which had befallen her. She is now an inmate of the Philadelphia Hospital. Mrs. Saunders, who lives in the garret of the house, saved her own child, and, even at infinite peril to herself, rushed into the seething room occupied by Mrs. King and saved one, of the children, divesting herself of her skirt to wrap round the child and leaping from the second floor window to the ground in the rear of the house. Mrs. King had followed her with the baby, and as she espied Lena she shrieked: "Where is Becky?" For an answer a terrific burst of flame came from the room she had just left. Then the poor woman's mental balance gave way and she was raving."

"The fire originated from the explosion of a gasoline stove, which was being carried into the street by Israel Grospan, one of the tenants of the house. The lamp was burning badly, and appreciating the danger the man intended to carry it into the street to remedy its faults. When near the bottom of the stairway, the stove exploded like a bomb, and almost simultaneously the stairway caught fire. Grospan maddened with pain from the burning oil which had splashed him, nevertheless did all he could to get the stove out of the house, but was compelled to give up."

"Another explosion of similar character occurred at 933 South Second street in the apartments of Annie Vohinskey, and the woman and her three months' old child were badly burned and taken to the Pennsylvania Hospital. Firemen were compelled to burst in the door of the room, and Fireman Barrett, who first entered, found the terrified woman with her clothes on fire, and the flames had spread to the little one's apparel. The baby was burned and nearly suffocated by the smoke, and the woman's flesh is frightfully burned. The woman died in terrible agony some time after her admission to the hospital."

"Still another gasoline explosion occurred in the pork packing establishment of Jacob Bofinger & Co., 611 North Third street, at an early hour in the morning. Fifteen hundred dollars will cover the loss occasioned by all the above fires, but in the case of the tenement house the poor people have lost their all."

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitntional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Senatorial Scripture.

To prove the fallacy of free trade in wool Senator Proctor recently quoted Scripture, convulsed the Senate and established an enviable reputation as a humorist, all in one speech. Thus the good book is made to serve all purposes. We give the gist of his Scriptural applications, though we fail to see wherein the Almighty ever instructed any nation on earth to corner wool. With no other hope except to amuse the dignified body, so called, the Senator proceeded with Republican argument as follows:

"The first recorded attempt to break down the interests of sheep husbandry was when Cain slew his brother Able, who was the keeper of seeep." The Senate was immediately convulsed, and the closest attention was paid to the quaint remarks of the tall statesman from Vermont. He continued: "The motives and purposes which actuated Cain were plainly the same as those which actuate his followers to-day. It was jealousy of a preferred and protected industry. Cain was a tiller of the ground, and brought of the fruit of the ground an offering unto the Lord."

"This offering may have been of rice or cotton or sugar—the Record does not state. The punishment meted out to Cain fairly foreshadows that which shall be meted out by the people to the promoters of this measure; a mark shall be set upon them, and when the time of retribution comes they will say, with Cain: "My punishment is greater than I can bear."

Mr. Proctor went on to quote considerably from the Holy Writ to show that sheep husbandry was, from the earliest times, considered a favored industry. Abraham tendered ewe lambs as witnesses of an oath in one of the earliest real estate transactions on record. Mr. Proctor alluded to the success of Jacob in improving the breed of sheep, which grew out of a bargain with Laban, his father-in-law, as described in the 13th chapter of Genesis. The quotations were particularly apt. "The shepherd and his calling and his flock," continued Mr. Proctor, "are often alluded to in the Holy Writ, and furnish some of its grandest imagery and most beautiful illustrations. Many of those specially favored of the Lord were shepherds, and everywhere that calling is referred to as one of the highest character, plainly recognizing its importance to the welfare and prosperity of the people."

"The fate of those who attack this industry and the flocks of their country is plainly foreshadowed in and prophesied in many places." Mr. Proctor quoted the following: "David said unto Saul, "Thy servant kept his father's sheep, and there came a lion and a bear and took a lamb out of the flock and I went out after him and smote him and delivered it out of his mouth, and when he arose against me I caught him by the beard and smote him and slew him. Thy servant slew both the lion and the bear; and this uncircumcised Philistine shall be as one of them, seeing he has defied the armies of the living God."

"The same fate, Mr. President," remarked Mr. Proctor, in his deepest bass and most solemn manner, "will surely be meted out to the political Philistine of the present day in November, 1894, and 1896. The rewards awaiting those who are faithful in sustaining the industries of their country are also foretold" Mr. Proctor quoted several passages to show the glorious future of those who cared for the sheep, and he concluded his reference to the Bible as follows, sending the Senate into a convulsion of laughter: "As a further evidence of the Divine preference it is written that he shall set the sheep on his right hand, but the goats on the left." The intended application of this sentence to the present situation is obvious.

The Puzzle Solved.

Perhaps no local disease has puzzled and baffled the medical profession more than nasal catarrh. While not immediately fatal it is among the most nauseous and disgusting ills the flesh is heir to, and the records show very few or no cases of radical cure of chronic catarrh by any of the many modes of treatment until the introduction of Ely's Cream Balm a few years ago. The success of this preparation has been most gratifying and surprising. No druggist is without it.

How does this idea strike you? Keep up a high protective tariff so that American manufacturers can pay labor more than the pauper-wages paid him abroad, then help the poor pauper to emigrate to the land of the free where he can be made useful by being thrown into competition with the protected American laborer.

Another little slice of terra firma, evidently once far above high water, but now called Johnson's Island, is said to be the property of the United States. There being rich deposits of guana on the island, Hawaii and England both want possession it seems. It is quite possible to stir up a stink over this roosting place of sea-birds.

TO HELP WOMEN.

That Is Why This Woman Writes.

(SPECIAL TO OUR LADY READERS.)

Few people have any idea of the suffering that oppresses some women.

Pains run rampant through their entire bodies. They suffer secretly as long as they can, and then go all to pieces and don't care what happens.

Yet this misery is easily relieved; thousands of American women proclaim the fact.

The portrait presented here is that of Mrs. J. M. Bender, who lives on the old York Road at Nicetown, Pa. She has been for many years in very poor health.

She had falling of the womb and other forms of female weakness, with headache, severe backache, pains all over her body, and serious kidney trouble.

Her blood was in such a bad state that physicians said she had dropsy. Nearly discouraged she tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and to her great surprise it made her a well woman.

She now wishes to tell women all over the world to take the Vegetable Compound and be well. Any druggist has it.

Nothing in all the world has cured so many cases of female weaknesses as Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Why don't you try it?

Lafayette College.

Lafayette College, at Easton, celebrated its fifty-ninth commencement on the 16-20th inst., and graduated a class of fifty members, equally divided between the Classical and Technical courses of study. The Senior Class Day, by the excellent choice of music and elaborate preparations, attracted an assemblage of 2,000 persons.

Among the novelties not on the usual programs of College occasions were a fantastic parade of the Freshmen in honor of their sailing safely into Sophomore seas and a dramatic representation by the Sophomore Class of the story of Pocahontas. The principal addresses were by Robert E. Speer, of New York City, on "The Heroism of Missions," Dr. John S. MacIntosh, of Philadelphia, on "Scotland's Story of Andrew Melville," and Walter C. Gilmore, of Williamsport, on "College Men and Politics." It is pleasing to note that seventeen of the students will be delegates to the Moody World's Bible Conference, at Northfield, on the 30th instant. The opening of the new athletic grounds, covering seven acres, and the receipt of a $5,000 legacy from Dr. Charles Elliott were noticeable as exponents of the constant growth of the College. President Warfield stated that the receipts from tuition had increased $3,000 per annum. The ladies of Easton gave a banquet to 250 graduates at the close of the commencement exercises, when it was announced that W. H. Keech, of Pittsburg, James R. Hogg, the carpet manufacturer of Philadelphia, E. J. Fox, of Easton, and Senator Griggs, of New Jersey, had been chosen trustees.

Besides the regular degrees the following honorary degrees were conferred:

Master of Arts on James R. Hogg, of the class of '78, Philadelphia, and on Joseph A. McCurdy, '83, lawyer, Greensburg.

Doctor of Philosophy on Prof. De-Benneville Keim Ludwig, principal of the Rittenhouse Academy, Philadelphia.

Doctor of laws on Charlemagne Tower, member of the Pennsylvania Historical Society, Philadelphia.

Doctor of Divinity on Rev. James W. Gilland, of '77, Shamokin, pastor-elect of the Westminster Church, Brooklyn, N. Y.; on Rev. James Gray Bolton, '72, pastor of the Hope Church Philadelphia, and on Rev. Harlan Gates Mendenhall, of '74, pastor of Greene Avenue Church, Brooklyn, N. Y.

The EMERSON PIANO.

These instruments have enjoyed a high reputation for more than forty years. Are Brilliant and Musical in Tone, and afford a most beautiful accompaniment to vocal music—the tone having that rare sympathetic quality which blends admirably with the human voice. They are durable, being constructed of the best Materials, by the Most Skillful Workmen. They have earned an especial reputation for Keeping in Tune, and also for retaining in a most remarkable degree their original fulness of tone—never growing thin or wiry with age.

The Emerson Upright Pianos especially have obtained a remarkable success during the past few years, and have invariably received a high award wherever exhibited. In all the essential qualities of a First-Class Instrument they are second to no pianos manufactured in the country. Send for illustrated Catalogue to the Emerson Piano Company, 116 Boylston St., Boston Mass.

$3,000.00 A YEAR FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS.

If you want work that is pleasant and profitable, send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $5.00 per day to $3,000 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Nothing difficult to learn or that requires much time. The work is easy, healthy, and honorable, and can be done during daytime or evenings, right in your own locality, wherever you live. The result of a few hours' work often equals a week's wages. We have taught thousands of both sexes and all ages, and many have laid foundations that will surely bring them riches. Some of the smartest men in this country owe their success in life to the start given them while employed by us years ago. You, reader, may do as well; try it. You cannot fail. No capital necessary. We furnish you with something that is new, solid, and sure. A book brimful of advice is free to all. Help yourself by writing for it to-day—not to-morrow. Delays are costly.

THE DEMOCRATIC NOMINEES.

WILLIAM M. SINGERLY.

The Democratic State Convention at Harrisburg on Wednesday made the following nominations: For Governor, William M. Singerly, of Philadelphia; Lieutenant Governor, John S. Rilling, of Erie; Auditor General, David F. Magee, of Lancaster; Secretary of Internal Affairs, W. W. Greenland, of Clarion; Congress-at-Large, J. C. Bucher, of Union, H. K. Sloan, of Indiana.

MR. CHRISMAN'S WITHDRAWAL.

To the Democratic Voters of Columbia County:

GENTLEMEN:—Since the announcement of my name in this county as a candidate for nomination to the State Senate such action has been taken in other counties of the senatorial district, and public opinion in those counties has taken such direction, that a candidate from this county in my judgement, and in that of personal friends with whom I have consulted, has no reasonable chance of success in the District Conference.

Besides, this county will present a candidate for the Congressional nomination with strong probability of his success; therefore, in the judgment of myself and many of my friends, it is not desirable or proper for the Democracy of this county to present a candidate for the senatorial nomination at the same time.

In view of these facts I feel it my duty, in order to promote the harmony and welfare of our party in this county and senatorial district, to withdraw my name from further consideration as a candidate for State Senator and hereby thank my friends throughout the county for their generous support. WM. CHRISMAN.

THE PAY OF ABSENT CONGRESSMEN.

Congressman Sperry, of Connecticut, threatens to turn on some light in regard to the pay of absent Congressmen. He holds that the conscientious member is the only loser under the prevailing law and requirement. Those willing to certify to being present when absent looking after their political fencing, &c., are the ones who get full pay. Now, $5,000 looks like a heap of money to pay a Congressman, when you come to consider what he does and what he fails to do. Besides their perquisites, that's their pay. And no matter whether the wheels of legislation are clogged by their absence or not, they want no dockage for any cause whatever. How would it be for the sovereign power to try to help our bewildered statesmen who are now in Congress to settle this dockage question? In these times it is barely possible that the people could find representatives who are willing to take the $5,000 a year and stand to their work just like men have to in about all other avocations of life. And, unless the dockage law actually docks the absentee Congressman who persists in making false report, we think the sovereign power had better give all this tired class of statesmen absolute retirement from office. It can easily be done on this issue. No matter who he is or where he comes from, we believe the sovereign power can find Congressmen for $5,000 a year who will stand up to their full duty, and who, if absent on private business when needed to make a quorum, will willingly submit to being docked like other mortals have to.

For instance, Mrs. Chas. Rogers, of Bay City, Mich., accidentally spilled scalding water over her little boy. She promptly applied DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve, giving instant relief. Its a wonderful good salve for burns, bruises, sores, and a sure cure for Piles.—W. S. Rishton, Druggist. tf.

IN CONGRESS.

Our Fostered and Fattened Industries--The President and Speaker--Pensions--More Sugar Trust Sweetness--Adjournment--Political Fodder.

From our Regular Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, June 23, 1894.

"What can't be cured must be endured," is a homely adage that is about all the consolation that the average Democrat can get out of the delay in the Senate in passing the tariff bill. Senator Harris, as the Democratic leader, has done all that one man could do, and he has been ably supported by some of the Democratic senators; but, unfortunately, not by all, and the margin is too small to force anything without a united support. Some of the Democratic Senators seem to have an idea that when they pledged their votes to the bill they had performed their whole duty; as a consequence, here's another week gone and the final vote is not in sight, although it is difficult to see what excuse the Republicans will have for prolonging the agony longer than next week. A Democratic Senator remarked in my hearing today; "I don't believe the Republicans will ever consent to have a vote taken on this bill until we compel them to do so." Whether this is true or not, I understand that it is the intention of nearly all of the Republicans to make long speeches on some portion of the bill next week. If that is allowed it is a very easy mathematical calculation to show the impossibility of passing the bill next week.

President Cleveland's little salt water trip did him a world of good. He returned looking like a new man; but the trouble with him is that he works just as hard in the debiltating weather of summer as he does in cold weather, and the natural consequence is that he soon gets run down. He knows this just as well as anybody does, but he is so constituted that he cannot stop work unless he goes away from where the work is.

Speaker Crisp has been confined to his room the greater portion of this week with a stomach trouble. His physician made him stay in the house more as a precaution than because his condition made it necessary. Representative Bailey, of Texas, made a great success as Speaker pro tem.

Commissioner Lochren, of the Pension Bureau, will turn over to Uncle Sam on the 30, inst., the snug little sum of $25,000,000, which by economical management of that bureau he has saved out of the amount his Republican predecessor estimated would be necessary to pay pensions from July 1, 1893, to June 30, 1894. Republicans who believe in wasteful and extravagant expenditure of public money will be sure to denounce Judge Lochren for not having paid out every dollar appropriated, but sensible people who believe that public business should be conducted on the same principles which govern successful private establishments will be apt to say: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant."

The Senate committee has about concluded its investigation of the sugar trust. It will hear no more witnesses, except the two or three Senators who have not, owing to their absence, yet been examined. It has already been made plain that the report will not be unanimous, the republicans being determined to try to make political capital out of the matter.

In order that no inconvenience may be caused by the failure of the regular appropriation bills to become laws by the first of July the House Appropriation committee has reported a joint resolution extending the appropriations for this year thirty days from July 1. This indicates that members of that committee are of the opinion that the appropriation bills can all be passed by the first of August. Democrats hope to have things in such shape that Congress can adjourn about that date.

It might be supposed that with the Senate meeting daily at 10 o'clock and not adjourning before 6, or half past, that Senator Faulkner, chairman of the Democratic Congressional Campaign committee, would be unable to find any time to devote to the work of the committee. But he does find lots of time. He spends something like an hour at committee headquarters every morning before the Senate meets and he returns in the evening as soon as he gets through his dinner and remains until 11 o'clock or later. Those who are familiar with the work he has already done pronounce him to be one of the most thorough organizers who ever directed the work of a campaign committee. Senator Faulkner is too experienced a political manager to discuss his plans in a newspape., but it can be said without any violation of confidence that he is confident the Democrats will control the House in the next Congress.

The House has again put its official endorsement on Representative Hatch's anti-option bill.

"There is a Salve for every wound." We refer to DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve; cures burns, bruises, cuts, indolent sores, as a local application in the nostrils it cures catarrh, and always cures piles.—W. S. Rishton, Druggist. tf.

THE OBNOXIOUS INCOME TAX.

On the 22nd. instant two important amendments were reported which are calculated to mollify the income tax provision of the tariff bill. The objectors to the bill succeeded in pulling its wholesome provisions down far enough to cover incomes of $3,000, instead of running it up the other way so as to commence on those receiving not less than $5,000 or $10,000 per year. But here is where the railroaders and corporations got in their fine work in the exemption from assessment of their running expenses, so-called. We presume if that amendment in the interest of railroads and corporations does not afford loophole enough for them to escape taxation, then our sympathetic statesmen will devise some other ways and means by which they can escape. Senator Sherman was obliged to admit that he favored an income tax in 1871, but he attributed his present opposition to it to the prevailing changed conditions and circumstances; saying if the circumstances (surrounding his individual case perhaps) were the same to day as they were then, he should now insist upon an income tax. He said he then believed it to be a fair and just mode of raising revenue, but he did not think that it was wise now. That's what is sometimes called candid; but if that is not what may be called straddling the question then I never saw or heard an aspiring politician attempt to get on both sides of a popular issue. They just seem to study how to do it successfully. And Sherman can come as near covering both sides at once as any statesman we know of who wants to be President, but, can't somehow.

Having said in 1871 that he believed it to be a fair and just mode of raising revenue, he seems to take a large bite of crow when present circumstances impel him to right-about face and say he will vote against an income tax "because he thinks it an unnecessary invasion of the taxing-rights of States." It looks to us a little incongruous for a bell wether in the Republican flock to now stand up and advocate the Democratic dogma of State rights. He does it, as we think, to cater to the same powerful element that Senator Hill is particularly anxious to please and to serve. In our humble opinion both Sherman and Hill are shifting their sails in the wrong direction. They are birds of a feather on income taxation, that's certain, which ever may be the Democrat and which the Republican.

Headache is the direct result of Indigestion and Stomach Disorders. Remedy these by using DeWitt's Little Early Risers and your Headache disappears. The favorite Little Pill everywhere.—W. S. Rishton, Druggist. tf.

Now Muley Hassan has mysteriously passed away. He was Sultan of Morocco, and died recently while journeying between Marakesh and Robat. It is openly hinted that he was murdered. His son, Aziz, was then proclaimed Sultan by the escort and ministers accompanying Muley.

Small in size, great in results: DeWitt's Little Early Risers. Best pill for Constipation, best for Sick Headache, best for Sour Stomach.—W. S. Rishton, Druggist. tf.

"I will not have plantation manners exhibited here," says Senator Hill, of New York, to Senator Harris, of Tennessee. To which Mr. Harris retorted, "that is the manners of the slums of New York." It seems the chastisement was just between them, inasmuch as they were both right.

A satisfied customer is a permanent one. That's why we recommend DeWitt's Little Early Risers. They cure Constipation, Indigestion and Biliousness.—W. S. Rishton, Druggist. tf.

It's Pretty Hot

Yes, we know it is very hot now, but this is to your advantage. We do not want to carry any summer dress goods over at all, so you had better come and examine our goods and prices.

It will pay you. Irish lawn, one of the most popular summer goods manufactured, has received the knife the hardest. Our Madras cloth that we are selling at 12½ cents now, you cannot buy anywhere else for less than 20 cents. They were made to sell at that, but hard times compelled them to come down, all to your advantage. No use of suffering from the heat when you can keep cool as easily as you can, now that goods are so cheap.

Call, see, and be convinced for yourself that what we say is so.

Grocery Department.

Don't forget we carry a full line of canned goods, such a boned turkey, chicken, and game; deviled turkey, chicken, ham and tongue, corned beef and lunch tongue for picnics and for your home. Saves cooking while it is so warm, and just as cheap. Also concentrated extract of coffee put up in bottles for picnics. Very low in price. Cheaper and better than most coffees.

REMNANTS. REMNANTS.

As is usually the case after a great clearance sale, remnants will accumulate. We have reserved ours, and in order to give every person from far and near an opportunity to by remnants at one third their original value, we have decided to make a special day for our remnant sale.

Every piece of goods in our store under 10 yds. will be sold at one-third of the original value. We have over 1,000 remnants of the following goods:

Black and colored worsted dress goods—calicoes, ginghams, challies, crashes, table linen, silks, dotted mulls, swisses, sheeting, muslins, laces, ribbons, embroideries, trimmings, etc.

Also some odd lots of towels, napkins, underwear, shirts, ties, hosiery, gloves, etc., which will be offered at the same reduction.

"Cosmo" buttermilk soap, 5c. a cake, 12 cakes in box, 50c.

Remember opening of sale, SATURDAY MORNING, JUNE 30, and will continue until the entire lot is sold. Out of town purchasers would do well to call early, as the early callers have the best selection.

Now Pope Leo issues an encyclical letter in which he appeals to all men and all creeds for "unity of faith," the church of Rome being of course the unit. He expresses sorrow for the animosities (?) which have torn great civilized nations from the church of Rome, and he even intimates a hope that they may yet return to the one true faith. Of protestants he says there remains to them no certain rule of faith or authority. He cites the cases of some enlightened protestants whom solicitude for salvation has brought back to Catholicism, and he exhorts all to return, in order that all may have one faith, hope and charity based on the same gospel.

A Great Religious Work.

The Columbia County Sunday School Association has set apart Friday, June 29th for a Religious Canvass for the whole county. Each family in the county will be visited with a view of ascertaining who attend Church and Sunday School and who does not. The object to secure the co-operation of all the people in building up such a union Christian sentiment in this county as will tell for good to every individual. It is hoped that every one will give the canvassers the information desired and all the encouragement possible in this great undertaking. The results will be published as soon as returns are made.

THE BOUNTIES OF NATURE.

Whatever ravages upon the bounties of nature other sections may be suffering, from locusts, grasshoppers, weevil, blight, &c., this section certainly has great reason to be thankful for the bounties of nature in profusion this season. Who can remember ever seeing the grain stand higher or more promising; or who would care to see more fruit laden upon the trees, or berries upon the bushes? With reasonable care of the inevitable potato-bug there is no reason to doubt that we shall have a most prolific crop of potatoes. And even corn, so greatly retarded by unfavorable weather at the time of planting, is now making rapid strides in growth toward perfection. Well may the good, bad and indifferent of this blessed land, individually, collectively, and without regard to religious creed or denomination, raise their hands heavenward to praise the God of all these bounties of nature lest in our indifference we should be made to cry to Him because of His witholding them from us. Whether we deserve them or not, they are here in profusion, and let us at least express some little word of thanks for the bounties of nature.

LAST CHANCE FOR MAGIC CITY.

All those who have been taking the "Magic City" portfolios, are delighted with them, and well they may be, for they are beautiful pictures of the World's Fair, and the price is extremely low. Hundreds of them have been sold by us, and the opportunity to get them will soon end. We shall not handle them after July 1, and all who want them must order at once. Orders will be received only for full sets, 18 numbers, at $1.80, or for single numbers only to complete sets, at 10 cents each. We have arranged to have them bound for 85 cents to $1.50. Don't wait another minute, but send in your order. No coupons will be required. 3t.

THE BLOOMSBURG CARPET WORKS.

Snyder & Magee Co., Limited.

A FINE STORE AND BIG BUSINESS.

The gentlemen connected with the two establishments named in the heading of this article are hustlers, and while pushing their own business, they believe in presenting to the outside world the merits of the town. They have recently had printed some envelopes with a lithograph of the Carpet Works on the front, and on the back is the above cut of the store of Snyder & Magee Co. Limited, corner of Fourth and Market streets, with the following reading matter:

BLOOMSBURG.

The most enterprising city of Penn'a. Every facility for manufacturing goods at a profit. Abundance of labor, cheap coal and ample shipping facilities by means of the P. & R. R. R., D. L. & W. R. R. and Penn'a. R. R. systems and on the line of the proposed Air Line R. R. from New York to Chicago.

BLOOMSBURG

as a place of residence is unsurpassed. Rapidly growing in wealth and population. P. O. receipts doubled in 3 years. State Normal School of over 500 students. Fine primary schools. Churches of every denomination. Pure air. Pure water. Broad streets. Fine residences. Sanitary drainage—no high water ever stops Bloomsburg's progress. Room for a million inhabitants.

BLOOMSBURG

manufactures more carpets (Phila. alone accepted) than any other town in Penna. Its silk goods, woolen goods, school furniture, household furniture, brass and copper tubing, brass and copper utensils, machinery, elevators and fountain pens, are used from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and from Canada to Mexico. There is room for hundreds more.

BLOOMSBURG

is surrounded by good farming country and is the natural jobbing centre for fifty miles around. Improvements are all solid and substantial.

If you manufacture anything that has a good market and you want to change location, write to any of the Bloomsburg hustlers and we'll reason together. Room for a million!

The Fourth-of-July Number of the New York Ledger.

The Fourth-of-July special holiday number of the New York Ledger is a publication of unrivaled beauty and interest. The cover has a beautiful girl waving an American flag from a window as a decoration. The contents of this number of the Ledger make a strong appeal to patriotic Americans. "Our National Birthday" and "Bunker Hill" are the subjects of special editorial articles. "Johnny's Fourth of July" is an amusing poetical effusion, dedicated to the spirit of Young America intent on celebrating the holiday. This number of the Ledger contains the first chapters of Mrs. E. D. E. N. Southworth's famous novel, "The Widows of Widowville," which will be read with delight by old and young readers. Mr. Fay S. Rathbun's new story, entitled "Suspected," and Mr. Seward W. Hopkins' story, "The Two Gentlemen of Hawaii," are continued from previous numbers, and are both strong original American novels. The Ledger is now an illustrated paper of the first class, and with its various departments of Science Correspondence, Woman's World, miscellany and children's stories forms the best and cheapest illustrated family paper published in America.

If it be true that our port naval officers do nothing much but draw their salaries, why not give them something to do or else dismiss them. Pensioners of this class are the most undeserving of all. We should say bounce them by all means as a matter of right and true economy.

Among other right pert qualifications, it is said that Senator Quay is good at playing the drum—fish. Somebody has put it in print that he recently caught a sixty pounder. And, as if to verify the fish-story, the reporter mentions as creditable witnesses Samuel Losch and W. F. Wright.

ECONOMICAL HEADGEAR.

How to Utilize Last Season's Hats and Make Them Becoming.

If you have an old straw hat that you want to make do until you can get a new summer hat, take the trimming off the hat and dust the straw perfectly. Take a half cup of clear cold coffee and a clean black cloth and wash the straw, rubbing it vigorously until it seems to be pretty well wet through. Then lay the hat on a flat surface, with a dark cloth under it and another over it till it is dry. For the crown select a tin pan or bucket that is about the same size as the crown, and press it over that. Then put your wire back in the edge of the rim—if it had one—and bend the hat in the shape that you desire to have it. You can change the shape entirely if you like. If the crown is too high, take out a few rows of straw close to the brim, where the trimming will cover it. And if the brim is too low for the present fashion, put in a few rows of straw taken from another hat, or a piece of buckram; it will be covered by the trimming. Then get some good shoe polish—that is all the average polish is good for—and give the hat three coats of the liquid blacking, waiting for each to dry. You will be astonished to see that your straw looks like new. This is a good way to freshen old hats during the summer: Brush and apply the polish without removing the trimming.

Only a Little Hair Now.

For the time being fashion has ordained that little or almost no hair is to be worn, and the difficulty of appearing with a fashionable outline of head is great for those to whom nature has been generous as regards locks.

Not that the heads are very small in outline, rather the reverse, but the hair is waved, "undulated" in deep, heavy waves, not only on the surface but throughout its thickness, so that a comparatively small quantity of hair makes a most respectable bush.

This is swept back loosely from the face, raised over small cushions that completely encircle the head, so that the hair projects behind and above the ears (which it sometimes partially covers), and the ends gathered into a small—very small—knot at the back, about midway between nape and crown.

Hardly an apology for a few fluffy curls breaks the expanse at either temple, the "fringe," that refuge of plain women, that covering shield of wrinkles, being entirely done away with.

With such a coiffure the latest ornament is a solitaire, placed in the billowing waves of hair a little above the forehead, from which spring two curved and tremulous golden wires ending each in the "eye" of a peacock's feather, the colors being represented by different precious stones.

A studied disarray is the keynote of the hairdressing now in vogue. The waved hair tumbles over the ears and is so loosely gathered up at the nape of the neck that it seems as if it would escape its pins at every movement.—New York Herald.

The Origin of Ice Cream.

The man who invented ice cream was a negro by the name of Jackson, and in the early part of the present century kept a small confectionery store. Cold custards, which were cooled after being made by setting them on a cake of ice, were very fashionable, and Jackson conceived the idea of freezing them, which he did by placing the ingredients in a tin bucket and completely covering it with ice. Each bucket contained a quart, and was sold for one dollar. It immediately became popular, and the inventor soon enlarged his store, and when he died left a considerable fortune. A good many tried to follow his example, and ice cream was hawked about the streets, being wheeled along very much as the hokey-pokey carts are now, but none of them succeeded in obtaining the flavor that Jackson had in his product.

Paris Summer Bonnet.

The bonnet here shown is a genuine Paris production, from Toilettes. The bonnet is of rice straw with a lilac pink spray in front. An Eminence satin bow adorns the back, with strings of the same. The inside of the brim is lined with satin, with little sprays of lilac resting upon the forehead curls.

Thirsty Babies.

It seems strange, but true it is, that there are yet in existence young mothers who never give their young babies a drink of water. Water is as necessary to a child's well-being as good food and its bath. Two or three times a day the baby should be given a drink of water, say a tablespoonful, at regular intervals. Try the little mite and see how he relishes it. Furthermore, it will, if given at regular intervals, keep the bowels in good order. The other day, by the way, a prominent physician was called in for a severe case of vomiting and sore throat. He prescribed a tablespoonful of water and one of milk to be taken separately every hour. His patient laughed, but had the good sense to obey, and sure enough, in a few hours she was well enough to get up and attend to her work.

Have a Good Trunk.

Whatever you economize in don't let it be the price of your trunk. One journey will be the wrecking of a cheap trunk, and two will cause its utter undoing. This is one of the cases where the best is, in the end, the least extravagant.

THIS MAN OBEYS ORDERS.

A Faithful Servant Who Never Questions an Order.

There is a man in this town who has a male servant who is more faithful than any dog that was ever born. He never questions an order. If the man was to tell him to walk down to the foot of Main street and jump off a dock he would do the walking and the jumping with a simple and unquestioning faith.

The other day a friend of the man's came into his office and asked the man to lend him his servant for a short time. The friend wanted a package which he had left at his house. The package was too valuable to intrust to a messenger boy, and he was too busy to go after it himself. The man loaned the servant, and his friend gave him these instructions: "Now, John, I want you to go up to my house and walk right up the front steps. The door will be open and you go right upstairs. My room is at the head of the stairs. You go in and you will find a big package on my dresser. That's the package I want, and, if you get back in an hour, I will give you a dollar."

The male servant listened attentively and said that he understood his instructions. He hustled out and in less than an hour returned with the package. He was not in very good shape. His face was bruised and his coat was torn. One of his eyes was blackened and the skin was off the knuckles of his right hand.

"Holy Moses, John!" exclaimed his employer. "What have you been doing?"

"Been in a fight," replied John, grimly.

"What were you fighting about?"

"Fellow up at that man's house."

"With whom?"

"Why," said John, in the most matter-of-fact way, "he didn't want me to walk up the front steps. They had just been painted."

"Well, why did you walk up them, then?"

John looked reproachfully at his employer. "Didn't you tell me to go up the front steps for that package?" he asked.

"Yes, but——"

"They han't no but about it. You told me to go up them front steps, and I went up 'em, paint or no paint. I had to fight the coachman, but I went up."

"He seems to have given you a pretty hard fight," ventured the employer.

"Huh!" sniffed John, contemptuously, "it wasn't a patch on the one the housekeeper and chambermaid gimme."

The man began to get alarmed. "Do you mean to say you fought everybody in that house?" he asked, severely.

"I dunno," replied John, gravely. "I licked the coachman, and the housekeeper, and the chambermaid, and the cook. If they was any one else, I didn't have no truck with them, but," he added, triumphantly, "I got the package and I done what I was told, and I'll go back and lick the rest of the folks if you say so."—Buffalo Express.

Historical Inaccuracy Corrected.

"What name does the paleface prisoner give?" sternly asked Powhattan, the warlike and powerful Indian chief.

"He says," replied one of the braves, respectfully saluring the ruler of the tribe, "his name is John Smith."

"John Smith!" roared the infuriated chieftain. "Does the paleface chump think he can keep his real name out of the papers by working the John Smith racket on me? Fetch him here! I'll John Smith him! Now brain him with the tomahawk!"

It was at this critical moment that Pocahontas, with her hair in curl papers, came rushing out of the family wigwam and saved the prisoner's life by marrying him on the spot. She thought he was a Vere de Vere.—Chicago Tribune.

I belong to that community which profess in principle the Augsburgian Evangelical Confession. So the followers of Luther call themselves, and are called in the covenants and fundamental treaties to which our persecuted ancestors (I have some among mine who died on the scaffold, others who died in exile for religion's sake), sword in hand, have pledged the Hapsburg in faith and oath."—Lutheran World.

GRAINS OF GOLD.

No evil is without its compensation.—Seneca.

Virtue is the first title to nobility.—Moliere.

Speech is a faculty given to man to conceal his thoughts.—Talleyrand.

A woman is seldom merciful to a man who is timid.—Bulwer-Lytton.

What do we live for, if it is not to make life less difficult for others?—George Eliot.

It is not alone what we do, but also what we do not do, for which we are accountable.—Moliere.

No man can answer for his own valor or courage, till he has been in danger.—Rochefoucauld.

The man is best served who has no occasion to put the hands of others at the end of his own arms.—Rousseau.

True religion, unlike human science, was given to man in a finished form, and is to be learned, not improved.—Isaac Taylor.

Alchemists tried in vain to turn the baser metals into gold. But the Divine Chemist can change the baser life of a sinner into the pure, shining life of a Christian.—Ferrer Martyn.

If there be one thing upon earth that mankind love and admire better than another, it is a brave man—it is a man who dares look the devil in the face and tell him he is a devil.—James A. Garfield.

EVAPORATING FRUIT.

A Much Better Method Than Outdoor Drying in the Sun.

Fruit is always a precarious crop. It is abundant one year, and scarce the next. There is economy in being able to utilize the surplus of a heavy fruit crop. If properly dried by evaporation, the surplus may be marketed or used in a time of scarcity.

A cheap and effective evaporator may be easily constructed. Have made a watertight tin vessel or pan, two and a half feet in width and from four or five feet in length, and about three inches deep. A small funnel must be soldered to one corner, through which the pan is to be partially filled with water. The funnel is then corked up, but a small aperture must be left in the cork for the escape of steam.

To use this evaporator, one end may be set on a kitchen stove, and the other properly supported. The first should be spread evenly over the pan, and a moderate fire kept up. All kinds of fruit can be speedily and thoroughly dried in from half an hour to three hours. It is necessary to see that the pan is kept constantly half full of water.

Forecast in Farming.

Keen, practical forecast is an important factor in every walk of business life, but for the farmer it is almost indispensable to any reasonable amount of success. Mechanical skill, once it has been fairly mastered, needs next to no thought to keep it up to the point of working efficiency. But farming, as it ought to be, not only requires careful thought, but a very great amount of forethought to make it either pleasant or profitable. The thing that helps most to elevate farm work above the level of the merest drudgery is the amount of hearty and exhilarating mental effort that can be infused into it; that, combined with the sense of duty and the feeling of hope, will, under Providence, make life on the farm more really attractive than pursuits apparently much more pleasant and alluring. Of all forms of thought, forethought is the most inspiring, just as afterthought is generally least pleasant. Of the various nationalities engaged in farming on this continent, I find the Germans and Scotch, in proportion to their numbers, most successful, and to that success their faculty of plodding, combined with calculating habits, have, I think, contributed the most. As a German friend of mine said lately, "A man must learn somedings effery day, if he wants to make money by farming." The skilled farmer propounds in the quiet of his spare hours the problems of the coming year with which he may need to grapple, and then sits himself to think out, in perhaps two or three different lines, the tactics by which those problems are to be solved, and those difficulties met. "Wise behind the hand," ready for business the day after the fair, the man with a dull, soapy sort of brain goes ahead in a mechanical sort of way, seeing nothing in particular until he strikes a snag or runs his head against a wall, and then feels around in a dazed sort of way to find out what has struck him. Proper forecast in farming goes a long way beyond the mere study of possible modes of action. Every possible form of obstruction is looked at, and plans made for getting round the corner, or, if that is impossible, for making the unpleasant effects of the collision as slight as possible. No great amount of seamanship is necessary in fine weather and good daylight, but when, in the misty darkness all around, you cannot tell whether the mass in your way is an island or an iceberg, the trained captain is ready for the emergency, while the fair-weather sailor acts like an imbecile. "Ready, aye ready," is the motto of the Napiers, a family famous in science, in war, in literature, and should be the watchword of every man who would farm successfully. "Be sure you are right, and then go ahead," is another equally-valuable maxim, and accredited to Davy Crockett, but it is only by a wide and far-reaching forethought that this certainly can be attained. The results may be much more valuable and enduring than the thinker himself has ever anticipated. When, more than fifty years ago, Amos Cruickshanks began with his one Durham heifer to try and build his ideal Shorthorn, he only meant to do the best he could with the materials within his reach. But he lived to see the triumphs of his plans, and the profit and honor which followed. All the world now believes in the Scotch Shorthorns, of which he has been, as far as man can be, the successful creator. "Learn to labor and to wait." is good sense and good poetry, but the biggest half of the profit of farming labor and much of its real pleasure must come out of the vigorous exercise of the worker's brain, of which skilled forecast is pretty much the masterpiece. It is one thing to wait on the chance that may turn up, quite another and a much nobler thing to wait in sure hope for the fruit of the trees that years and years ago you selected and planted in the confidence that, if not your hand, some other one, would be sure to pluck goodly fruit.—Richard Waugh in American Agriculturist.

Protection Against Pear Blight.

The Gardener's Monthly gives a statement from G. R. Dykeman, of Shippensburg, Pa., of his experiments in applying oil to the trunks of fruit trees—a practice which has been strongly recommended for its beneficial effects, among other things as a protection against pear blight. Mr. D. applied oil last year to 600 peach trees, 200 apple, several pear and plum trees, and 100 quince. All the peach trees, five years planted, were killed; the other trees were not injured. Other peach trees were painted with refuse lard and linseed oil, and these are all dead. The object in greasing was to keep the rabbits off. Oil is sometimes applied for the white scale.

The Foreign Strikers.

The Governor was recently obliged to send the State militia to suppress the riots at Walston, Pa., and to release the Americans who were drafted and enforced into the service of the foreign strikers. Thousands of foreign miners took possession of Walston, and, with a view to holding their position securely, they fully armed themselves and enforced the English-speaking citizens to assist them in picket duty. They terrorized the entire vicinity of Walston. The war-like Hungarians and Italians being a la Hungary and Italy in the land of the free. A reliable dispatch to the Governor said: "the situation is extremely critical, the rioters are destroying property and terrorizing the people. The American citizens are thoroughly disgusted at the high handed attitude of the foreigners. The farmers who were hauling tan bark on the public road were forced to quit, and every citizen passing the place must halt at their command It was thought the regiments called out would be sufficient to restore order. Right there at Walston somebody ought to get hurt according to our Americanized notions

A GREAT ATTRACTION.

One of the greatest attractions that Gidding &. Co., the clothiers, have yet had in their show windows is an automatic monkey who smokes genuine cigaretts; so perfect are the actions and expressions of the eyes, lips and mouth that people stand and wonder at it, and it takes them a while to believe that it is not genuine. In the lower window they have real grass growing, on which are some tiny Rabbits grazing. A sign "Keep off the grass" does not bother bunny in the least, as he goes right on unmindful of it. This window is made to represent Grass Cloth neck-wear. With two such windows, it is no wonder that crowds constantly surround them.

A LONG STRING of diseases follows a "run-down" system when liver is inactive and the blood in disorder. Look out for "breakers ahead" by putting the liver and blood in a healthy condition. You've only to turn to the right remedy to make yourself secure from disease. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery prevents as well as cures. Take it, as you ought, when you feel the first symptoms (languor, loss of appetite, dullness, depression) and you'll save yourself from something serious.

In recovering from "La Grippe," or in convalescence from pneumonia, fevers, or to build up needed flesh and strength it is indicated.

It's a blood-purifier that has stood the test of time. For a quarter of a century the "Discovery" has numbered its cures by the thousands. The manufacturers prove their faith in it by guaranteeing it for all disorders arising from bad blood; in Scrofula, Eczema, Tetter, Salt-rheum, Erysipelas, Boils, Carbuncles, and every kindred ailment.

If you receive no benefit you'll get your money back. What offer could be fairer?

It cures Catarrh in the Head — perfectly and permanently — Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy.

Another Presidential Assassination.

France is to-day in mourning over the cruel assassination of her President, M. Carnot, who was stabbed to death by an Italian anarchist named Cesare Santo.

Beloved by the people of the Republic at large, and having no reason to apprehend death at the hands of any one, the President had gone to Lyons to attend an exhibition of arts, sciences and industries. Here he attended also a banquet given in his honor by the Chamber of Commerce, after which he walked to his carriage which was in waiting near by. He was evidently watched and followed by the Italian villain, for he had hardly reached his seat in the carriage until the assassin speedily approached, and, drawing a dagger from its wrappings of newspaper, he plunged it into the side of the startled President. The wound being in the region of the heart, the victim sank back in his seat unconscious. He was hastily driven to the prefecture for treatment, and Santo was placed under arrest. The news spread like wild-fire and infuriated crowds filled the streets, and the lives of all Italians were no doubt in jeopardy. The police had all they could do to protect anything and everything known to be Italian. An examination of the President's wound revealed its seriousness. The young assassin was born in the province of Milan, and seemed to anticipate being mobbed while on the way to prison. He reached there in safety, however. Claiming to not understand the language, he talked but little when questioned.

It is too early to even conjecture the political and religious effect of this death, but the Pope of Rome seems quite solicitous, it seems. When Mme. Carnot and her children were brought into the presence of the dead President the affectionate wife trembled with emotion, but shed no tears, though all others about her were weeping. The officials retiring, the family were left alone with the cruelly murdered husband and father.

The conventional sympathy from all the civilized governments of the world will be but little consolation to the bereaved ones of this illustrious family.

Until the cowardly assassination of President Lincoln, by Booth, followed afterward by that of Garfield, by Guiteau, our own Republic was singularly free from any such dastardly brutal, and inglorious acts. As these assassinations are generally to avenge some political or religious grievance, real or imaginary, the penalty of ordinary death seems to be but little restraint upon the more vicious class who frequently aspire to be martyrs in their cause. Unless a clear case of insanity could be shown we should advocate torture as well as death in all such cases. In other words, we would have all such martyrs be martyrs indeed, by having them know in advance that more than ordinary death awaited their dastardly acts.

VETERANS IN TENTS.

The diminishing remnant of the vast and gallant host that went forth from the mountains and valleys and cities of Pennsylvania to the defense of the Union during the dark days of the Rebellion will reassemble on the historic battlefield of Gettysburg on Saturday, June 30th. The occasion is that of the annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, and for a week the veterans will live over again their war-time experience in true army style. The green heights of Cemetery Hill, thickly dotted with the white tents of the old soldiers, is an imposing spectacle in itself, while a continuous round of drills, parades, ceremonies and camp-life frolics render Gettysburg a most attractive place to visit during the encampment. From June 27th until July 6th, inclusive, the Reading Railroad will sell special round trip tickets from all points in its territory at a very material reduction from the regular rates. These tickets will be good to return any day until and including July 9th. On Sunday, July 1st, there will be special excursion trains over the Reading road from Philadelphia and also from Reading. The low fares afford a rare opportunity to visit the greatest battlefield of the rebellion, and those desiring information regarding tickets and trains can obtain the same from the nearest Reading Railroad ticket agent.

"RESURRECTED"

At the recent Convention of the Columbia County Sabbath School Association, held in Bloomsburg, May 24 and 25, 1894, we understand that the Frosty Valley Sabbath School was pronounced "dead." We will kindly inform the public that it has been "resurrected," by sending our report to the editor for publication.

Meeting called for the purpose of organizing a Sunday School at the Frosty Valley M. E. Church, June 17, 1894. Rev. Joseph Gray in the chair; Miss Martha E. Girton acting as Secretary. On motion it was determined to organize a Union Sunday School.

Mr. M. A. Girton was elected Superintendent. Miss Martha E. Girton elected, Secretary. There being so few in number, it was decided that no other officers be elected until the following Sunday.

On motion the meeting adjourned.

MARTHA E. GIRTON, Secretary.

REV. JOSEPH GRAY, Chairman.

JUNE 24, 1894, 3 o'clock, P. M. Second meeting called to order by Superintendent. After singing and prayer, the following officers and teachers were elected.

Assistant Superintendent, Mr. James Gulliver; Treasurer, Miss Katherine Hartman; Librarian, Mr. George Hutching.

TEACHERS ELECTED.

Two First Classes—Mr. James Gulliver, and Mr. J. F. Emmitt.

Two Second Classes—Mr. George Hutchings, and Miss Harriet Girton.

Infant Classes—Miss Minnie Bruglar, and Mrs. S. M. Girton.

On motion two committees were appointed for the purpose of securing Quarterlies, singing books, etc.

After singing the hymn, "I love the Sabbath School," the meeting adjourned.

MARTHA E. GIRTON. Secretary.

M. A. GIRTON, Chairman.
